report be correct. While we believe it was to do so, yet the speech of Distracti still rings in our care; as he singles Charles Sumner out from the mass, and Sumner's Hamiljation. From the Pittaburg Dispatch.
The displacement of Senator Summer from the chairmaniship of the Committee on Foreign Relations is accepted by himself and by the country at large as a humiliation, imposed on him by his party. It need not, perhaps, have been so regarded, but his intense desire to retain the position gives his removal the appearance of punishment. position gives his removal the appearance of punishment. Had he, when the intimation of the purpose of the party to make a change was made known to him, promptly ly yielded the position, either on the ground of ill-health or for the broader and fairer reason that he had snjoyed the honors of the best position the Senate afforded sufficiently long, he would not do and the blow has fallen. We have no disposition to underestimate the abilities or services of Senator Sumner; and yet we deem the action of the Republican Senatorial causes wise and right. The reasons simply are that Mr. Sumner was disposed to be dictatorial to the party, but the report be true that the Committee have so reported, we have no doubt a bitter war will be waged on the Senate over the change proposed.

disposed to be dictatorial to the party, and no man should be allowed to hold high positions and display such a spirit.

Those who were in position to know, will remember that Mr. Lincoln, during bie term of office, was compelled to exer-cise all his tact and shrewdness in order to one all his tact and shrewdness in order to maintain agreeable relations with Mr. Sunner. During his incumbency of the Presidential office, it was exceedingly important that his party should be beld together, and that not the slightest break should occur. Hence he often yielded, and by employing the most carful means. Not only has a fearful destruction of property been occasioned, but a loss of life that is far more deplorable, and also a long list of wounded. Terrible as have been the consequences, however, they would have been meakulably more so only for and by employing the most carful means, succeeded m preventing men like Summer from breaking away from the administration. Very early in President Grant's administration, it was known that Mr. Summer was inclined rather to be hostile than friendly toward him. The President is a plain, atraightforward, matter-of-fact person, thoroughly honest in his motives and purposes, and not given to blandishments. Consequently Mr. Sumner, in his visits to the President, was received politicly.

not only opposed the movement, but went out of his way to make a litter personal attack on the President. Mr. Motiey was immediately removed,—not, as we think to record on Mr. Summer, but because the personal structures of man, situated on an arround the president of the country, and almost indescribable. Let the reader imagine an irresisting against the fruit arround the property of the propert cause it was felt that after this sotion there was no further reason why the administration should not act out its well settled convictions relative to Mr. Motley.

Another circumstance also tended to embitter the controversy. The President affirms and Mr. Summer does not deny, that when he called on the Massachusetts structure after the controvers of the storm. The East St. Louis elevator was the first edition struck on the Illinois abore, a strong frame building. The roof was Sensitor relative to the San Domingo affair—before the subject had yet been made public, Mr. Sumner diverted the conversation, and pressed upon him the conversation, and pressed upon him the claims of a certain person for office. This has been done, and it is right.
From the Pittsburgh Gazette.

Once again our city, or at least its ins stance, however, the effects are far more purposes, and not given to blandishments.

Consequently Mr. Sumner, in his visits to the President, was received politely, but was not fawned upon, or treated as though he were the greatest personage in the country." This is correctly understood to be the starting point in the disagreements between Mr. Sumner and the President, which have culminated in the former's removal from the Committee on Foreign Relations. From this severance of kindly feeling, other influences have spring, until at last open and better hostility has broken out. From what is known of the progress of this growing hostility, it is fair to presume that the removal of Motley played a very important part. Mr. Sumner claimed, in virtue of his position as a chairman of the Committee of Foreign Relations, that he was entitled to name, and thus practically appoint one of our Foreign Ministers. His claim was conceded, he named Mr. Motley as Minister to England, and this choice was accepted and ratified. But Mr. Motley did not meet the views of the administration, and his removal was denieded upon. We have little doubt but he would have been retained mach longer than he was, had not Mr. Sumner developed hostility to the President and his friends claim that Mr.

San Domitgo movement. The President and his friends claim that Mr. Summer promised support. He affirms that he answered evasively. Certainly his record on the question of territorial acquisition naturally led to the belief that he would tavor the annexation of San Domitgo. He was enthusiastically in favor of the purchase of Alaska, a territory that will never pay the expenses of governing it. Every argument that could be advanced in favor of that project, and many others that would not apply there, were brought forward in favor of the acquisition of San Domitgo. Yet Mr. Summer not only opposed the movement, but want a moment's warning up the river in a diagronal line, inclining eastward in its advance—a terrible whirling force, coming up the river in a diagronal line, inclining eastward in its advance—a terrible whirling force, coming up the river in a diagronal line, inclining eastward in its advance—a terrible whirling force, coming up the river in a diagronal line, inclining eastward in its advance—a terrible whirling force, coming up the river in a diagronal line, inclining eastward in its advance—a terrible whirling force, coming up the river in a diagronal line, inclining eastward in its advance—a terrible whirling force, coming up the river in a diagronal line, inclining eastward in its advance—a terrible whirling force, coming up the river in a diagronal line, inclining eastward in its advance—a terrible whirling force, coming up the river in a diagronal line, inclining eastward in its advance—a terrible whirling force, coming up the river in a diagronal line, inclining eastward in its advance—a path of about six or eight hundred feet wide, and ru-hing onward with a rour line, inclining eastward in its advance—a path of about six or eight hundred feet wide, and ru-hing onward with a rour line, inclining eastward in its advance—a trible whirling force, compacted in a path of about six or eight hundred feet wide, and ru-hing onward with a rour line, inclining eastward in the southwest, coming up the river claims of a certain person for office. This circumstance can only be interpreted to imply that had the request for office thus made been acceded to, Mr. Sammer might have sustained the San Domingo movement, as it was not be who opposed it. This remark may seem severe, but we have yet to see the first particle of evidence, either in Mr. Sumner's speeches, or in the representations of his friends, that he opposed the acquisition of San Domingo on any broad principle of public of frame work over the eastern anniment pier of the bridge was twisted up like a bunch of reeds in the fingers of the storm, and crashed down in a pile of chaotic ruin. In these and other ways, he had made the impression that unless his views were acceded to, in all cases he would virulently oppose bay measures brought forward. More than once has he coquetted and voted with the Democracy to defeat measures regarded as important by his party. In other words he has assumed to dictate the policy of his party in Congress, and the administration. The thing has grown to be insufferable. He has reached a point where he is a clog to the party. Confidence in his integrity of action is impaired. No one dare venture to predict what course he will take toward the action of the Higg Commission, in the action of the Higg Commission, in the settlement of our troubles with Eagland. We do not bear the slightest enger against the Senator, while we do have a kind and friendly feeling for him. But it is to us self-evident, that, and matter what Mr. Sumner may have been in the part, his future usefulness will be much impared by an activity of disposition, that appears to be galoing greater control of him as the days of his lite speed on. So strongly has this become manifest that his latter fietee and bitter upposition to the President, is plainly evoked by a p-reonal animosity, that should have no place in the grave deliberations of the Committee of which Mr. Sumner was chairman.

evoked by a p-rsonal animosity, that should have no place in the grave deliberations of the Committee of which Mr. Sumner was chairman.

This peculiar feature of Mr. Sumner's character has developed itself within a very short period, and it is only of late that he appears to be utterly unable to control humself when aroused or excited by opposition or disappointment. Such a man, we care not how invaluable may be his intellect, or how high be may stand in the respect and extern of a nation, would be dangerous, as Chairman of the Committee of Foreign Relations. Just as this present time we need firmness, guarded by a cool judgment, watching avery anovement, but, not allowing itself to be roffied with every little adverse wind that may, blue upon ut. Mr. Sumner is sot that man, led far from being fitted to-day for the Chairmanship of that Committee, he is, in our opinion, the most unafted of all the members of the Senata.

Believing that you carnestly desire further the true interest of the oil trade, and that you aim to give your readers as accurate monthly reports of the production as are possible to be obtained, the writer trusts that you will permit an honest criticiam of one part of your report for February. You state "while it is conceded means of ascertaining the exact amount, suppose he would have pronounced the cause all knowledge was hidden in the and if there were, it is questionable

The error of this paragraph hes in the fact that it is neither difficult to ascertain the amount of benzine used in wells, nor is it at all questionable, whether, after having ascertained the exact number of barrels shipped from similar inquiries at the offices of the refin- their big well is located. each month, and sold during the month. Then remembering that benzine barrels average 46 gallons cach, it is apparent that it is not at all difficult to arrive at the amount that has been used in wells. So much for ascertaining amount used.

You report the production for February to be 14 372 barrels per day. The best information that the writer has been able to obtain fixes the average amount of ben zine used during the past year at about 1,200 barrels per day .. When used, benzine is generally allowed to remain in the well about twelve hours. It is then pumped out, sometimes directly into the five acres, and on it are already four wells crude oil tank and sometimes returned to down, and four more in process of going barrels to be again used in the well before down, and aome of the latter four are it is pumped in with the crude oil. This is the most deplorable feature in the event of yesterday. Had we only, to chronicle the destruction of property, the task would be unpleasant, but among an energetic people the loss would easily be repaired. The dead, however, make a read out of the storm, and make even tragedy out of the storm, and make ever ta remembrance a horror. So far ag could be ascertained last evening: there were seven men killed and fifty-two persons wounded.
